Wiffre school districts up for election in November

"Friendly lawsuit" a possibility

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER Hancock County Board pervisors have voted that all five school board seats will be up for election in November, but the results will end up in court to decide if the election is needed or not.

This followed a conference between Hancock County School Board attorney Steve Benvenutti and board of supervisors attorney Gerald Gex.

"This will be a friendly law-suit," Gex said. "What we want is for a judge to make a decision as to what is needed. We can always call off an election, you can't just have one.'

We are suing to have the judge tell us what the law is. We want to make sure that when the election was held that it is not subject to attack," Benvenutti said.

The supervisors said that they did not want to get caught in the middle of a fight between the school board members and the superintendent.

School board member Lennette Necaise and school board president Cheryl Bennett and former Hancock County school superintendent Terrell Randolph were present at the meeting.

"This is not personal. We don't have anything personally against Myrna. We ran in good faith. I will have to run three times in four years if we have another election. You can believe if I run again all the t's will be crossed and the i's dotted before I put my name on the bal-

Inquiry leads to opinion from attorney general

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER There will be an election for all five county school board positions in the November election. Hancock County Superintendent of Education Myrna Bourgeois started an investigation, which has led to the attorney general's opinion that all school board slots should be up for election and that current board members are serving in a de facto capacity (actually existing without lawful authority). Bourgeois said that after she was questioned about what board positions would be up for election in November and it was unclear to her which candidates were running, she started getting concerned.

Nothing fit together until I saw the Hancock County Board of Supervisor's map. Their map and ours are nothing alike. We have people elected to represent areas that they don't even live in," Bourgeois said.

Troopers find crank, arrest Florida couple

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL Two state troopers and a drug-sniffing canine made an interesting discovery of several thousand dollars worth of methamphetamine, a synthetic cocaine also known as crank, that landed a Florida couple in jail for possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. Detective Matt Karl, with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and a member of the Hancock County Narcotics Task Force, reported the arrest of Edward Radley, 35, and his wife Deborah Radley, 39, of Pace, Fla., on Friday, Aug. 26 around 9:30 p.m.

Troopers Mike Cox and Alex Hodge and the dog stumbled upon the Radley's car, a 1981 Camaro, in a rest area and decided to check it out. When Radley was asked to present his driver's license he reached into his glove compartment; the troopers observed a large bag containing a rock-like substance on the console. Also found were paraphernalia including a substance used to cut the drug, Inositol, a measuring device and other supplies and $985 in cash.

Karl and Detective Glen Strong offered some information on crank, not often seen in this area. The packages confiscated after the Radleys were arrested contained goldish colored chunks of crystals similar to quartz crystals, which are concentrated forms of the drug. Crank has an odor similar to that of a noxious flower because it is prepared with anything from chloroform to gasoline additives. After it is cut with other substances, it can be smoked in a pipe or diluted to be injected into the veins.

The Radleys made bond the morning after their arrest and overnight incarceration at the Hancock Justice Facility. They are to appear in Justice Court

Casino Magic construction is discussed

BY MARY G. SEILEY

State Gaming Commission officials want to know when Casino Magic plans to get on with constructing a hotel and golf course.

The "infrastructure" items have been long-announced, but not constructed, said assistant commission director Chuck Patton. Citing a lack of "visible progress" in the construction, Patton said commissioners want to make sure those things are still on track."

The matter is up for discussion at a special interim meeting today in Tunica. The agenda also includes proposed licensing for the Gold Strike Resort and Casino at Pine Hills on the Bay of St. Louis, near the Hancock Harrison county line. Casino Magic has a 200-unit lodge under construction at Felicity and Engmann streets. Officials said last June they could build and open those accommodations within months, while the hotel will take a couple of years to complete.

Pilings have been driven for the first of two hotel high-rise structures at Casino Magic, but construction of the building hasn't begun.

Construction of the golf course, say casino officials, has been held up by protracted negotiations for permits from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Meanwhile, however, the commission is pushing harder than ever to force area casinos to invest in landside "infrastrcture" adjacent to the floating gaming operations.

A proposed regulation would require each future casino to commit to building at least a 250-room hotel and 500-car parking facility.

City's rich stock of historic structures need to be preserved

BY MARY G. SEILEY"

Bay St. Louis lacks any laws protecting the hundreds of historic homes nestled in town -but there's no lack of interest in putting some regulations on the books.

Historic preservation advocates say Bay St. Louis sorely needs to enact ordinances protecting the city's rich stock of old structures, not only from demolition but also from "inappropriate" alterations.

And, some say, the city desparately needs to guide the appearance of new construction within the historic area, so ultra-modern designs won't pop up next door to significant, classic structures.

Fires and hurricanes have swept away scores of significant structures since the turn of the century, says Hancock County Historic Society president Charles Gray. But what's been lost through demolition is sig nificant as well, he says. And a number of structures have been "bastardized" through remodeling, Gray adds.

"As it stands, the city has over 570 properties on the National Register of Historic Places one of the most concentrated pools of historic structures in the state.

City officials say the comprehensive development planning process that's now underway includes study of historic district ordinances. A move in that direction was generally endorsed by citizens who spoke at several recent planning

As dawn broke Saturday, Boudin's Waste & Recycling trucks were ready to roll through the streets of Waveland on a special cleanup. Waveland's city council contracted with Boudin to make the thorough clean sweep of the city. Listen up, men!

'Our father was not one to go to church, but he was a family man, a hard-working man."

This line could be patented for the numerous families which begin funeral discussions at the church rectory with the same tentative, apologetic, embarrassed disclaimer.

"One thing about our father, he would do anything for anyone, and he would do it right. He took care of his family and he took care of people who needed his help.'

Thus armed, I go forth to do spiritual battle, to celebrate the life of another man who seldom darkened the threshold of the church, but who instructed his wife carefully to make sure that 'Father" would be the one to do his funeral.

"John was not a churchgoing man," I typically introduce the sermon. "However, he did the things a churchgoing man should do, apart from attending church services. He took good care of his family, and he lived the golden rule.

"There is certainly some problem in that he did not attend church regularly. Still, John had the good fortune of having a wonderful wife who constantly regenerated herself with public prayer. She brought church back home to him.

As these words tumble from my lips, I invariably view the makeup of the funeral congregation. Surprise! There are many men minced in around the whole church — a sight which would be most welcome every Sunday and for all

"Listen up, you men!" I continue. "Anytime there are church services, anyone can easily lay down the odds. The women will outnumber the men two to one, three or more to one. The same goes for any church meetings or activities.'

So the men do show up for funerals, weddings and, to a lesser extent, baptisms. Some show up a bit more often, but many fit the baleful description of the three-time Christian who enters the church when hatched, matched and dispatched.

The macho thing obviously has a lot to do with it, relegating something gentle like religion to women and others who are soft and somewhat docile. Why should an independent, intelligent man go where he will be told what to do?

Besides, there are strictly macho things to do every day of the week, especially on weekends, and most of all Sundays. With a bit of sophistry, the men seem to be taking just half of God's word to heart. After all, Sunday is the day of rest.

For some men, there is the conscience thing too. Why go where I will be reminded and reprimanded for losing my tempter, being arrogant, cheating my customers and partners in business, and running around on my spouse?

Listen up, men! Avoiding public thanks, praise and intercession may be an easy, convenient way to live one's life, if you dare discount the divine windfall into your family nest. Now be warned that this discounting is most dangerous.

Nothwithstanding, you are taking a precarious chance and playing a deadly game with salvation to depend on someone to bring church to you. If you, as John, have a pious wife, indeed count your blessings. But accompany her to church!

City officials have begun gathering ordinances to study, and have asked that citizens interested in helping mold pre-servation proposals contact City Hall to volunteer. Several have already, including Leo Reilly, a retired architect from New Orleans who's done extensive work with federal and state recent years. What layers of restrictions the city would have on construc-tion and demolition, and how they would be enforced, will be up for debate.

Questions include such matters as whether the new laws prohibiting demolition be based on the age of a structure, or its historical significance? If a property owner can't tear down an old structure, can the owner just let it demolish itself through neglect?

Should the city have a board that tells property owners what color they may paint an historic structure, or what style shingles are appropriate? Is height to be regulated in the historic area? Will chain link fences be outlawed? Fillingame said most likely Bay St. Louis will start with ordinances to accomplish three things: avert demolition of historic properties, guide the appearance of new construction in the historic area, and regulate the renovation of existing historic structures.

Those three elements are the "teeth" needed locally to qualify the city as a Certified Local Government in preservation circles - making the city eligible for certain federal grants.

Cawthon said 13 Mississippi cities and one county have qualified for such participation, and a wide range of grants are available. Vicksburg city officials, for example, prepared and published a book examining Afro-American properties of significance in that town, he said. Biloxi and Ocean Springs qualified for grants to restore some publicly owned historic

Aside from the fact that the homes are old, he said the city is blessed to have a collection of architectural style that's unique to the Mississippi Gulf Coast area.

"It gives it a character that's special," Cawthon said. "It makes it a unique community."

The same could be said for the special styles of historic properties found in New Orleans, Boston or Philadephia, Natchez, Vicksburg or Bay St. Louis, he said. "It makes them what they are: special and

Downtown area of Bay needs clean-up funds

Dear Editor

Bay St. Louis is truly "A Place Apart." Our ambiance, charm and abundance of friendly people make us very unique.

We have just read in the newspaper that the mayor is ready to present a $10 million budget to the town council. We bet there is no allocation of funds in that budget for cleanup of downtown streets.

A close look at Beach Boulevard from DeMontluzin to the railroad tracks and for several blocks down Main Street reveals lots of real dirt (i.e. grit, mud, rocks) and much, much menmade dirt, cigarette butts, broken glass, empty cups, trash, etc.

It's a bit like looking at a beautiful child in nice clothes, only to discover that she has dried egg on her face and dirt and stains on her dress.

We have been business owners on Beach Boulevard for 15 months now, and not once have the streets been cleaned. We have picked up broken glass, beer bottles, crawfish shells and all manner of trash from in front of our place. Should it be our responsibility to clean a public street?

Every city we have ever lived in has provided street cleaning and public trash cans in their business district.

Since we have more money than probably 98% of towns our size in this country, let's have a plan to clean up and maintain downtown Bay St. Louis.

There are also numerous vacant lots and buildings that are not kept up. Where are the owners of these properties?

Our town council and mayor should take a trip to Fairhope, Ala. Maybe then they would see how "A Place Apart" should

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

A Report on the Special Legislative Session

Prison crowding, state parole laws, and re-establishment of the Department of Human Services were priority issues as members of the Mississippi Legislature gathered in special session during the past week to wrestle with these and other

New housing facilities were approved for more than 4,000 state inmates under a tough-oncrime prison construction program in a concerted effort to get criminals off the streets, alleviate crowded conditions in state prisons and local jails, and help the state comply with a federal court mandate.

Major provisions include construction of additional units at the state correctional facility in Greene County to handle 1,416 inmates; a new 700-bed unit at the state prison in Rankin County; authority to contract for construction of 1,000-bed private correctional facilities in LeFlore County and Marshall or Wilkinson counties; two 75-bed restitution centers, one expected to be located in Bolivar County; and a 75-bed work camp in Noxubee County.

The long-range plan also would help pave the way for future construction of private or public prison facilities in any of four other counties — Lauderdale, Quitman, Perry and Sharkey. A new board to be known as the State Prison Emergency Construction and Management Board was designated to handle the contracts for the private facilities, expedite building of new units in Rankin and Greene counties, and provide for timely removal of 2,000 state prisoners from county jails.

The bill gives officials a goahead to study and/or implement a broad range of temporary emergency steps to reduce the backlog of state inmates in county jails, including contracting with another state to house up to 500 Mississippi prisoners, double-bunking and/or rotating of bed space for inmates and purchase of military-style tents to hold non-violent offenders.

Other major bills approved during the nine-day special session would:

- Re-enact the state Department of Human Services but require legislative approval on any future privatization contracts, including a hotly debated contract with a private company to handle collection of child support payments in Hinds and Warren counties.

The contract would remain in effect in those two counties as a pilot program but could not be extended into other areas of the state without specific legislative authorization. The bill was rejected by the Governor because of the restrictions on privatization contracts, but the House and Senate both voted Aug. 20 to override the veto and let the measure become law.

The bill also contains a new section involving welfare payments to mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits. The measure allows continued payments to the recipient based on the number of children when the application for assistance was first approved, but prohibits any increase in AFDC benefits for children who might be born thereafter to the same mother. The change is subject to approval by federal welfare officials.

- Re-instate the state Parole Board as a full-time fivemember board for one year but set up a joint legislative committee known as the Parole Commission to look at the entire parole system and submit its recommendations by January 1995 in regard to doing away all together with paroles in the future.

The bill also specifies a number of additional violent crimes for which there will be no parole, including capital murder, most sex crimes, armed robbery, drive-by shootings and carjackings. Give the Mississippi Supreme Court the power to reweigh evidence and affirm a death penalty on appeal if the judges determine "harmless errors" had occurred in the sentencing phase of a capital trial, rather than sending the case back to the lower court.

The measure is an effort to help expedite the timeconsuming appeals process in death penalty cases.

Another bill was approved to clarify existing criminal laws involving felony exceptions to manslaughter. The House also passed a separate bill to place the responsibility for sentencing people in capital murder cases in the hands of the judges, rather than the trial juries, but this measure ran into trouble in the Senate and failed to win final approval.

In addition, the Legislature voted to provide supplemental funding for three new veterans' homes originally authorized in the 1993 legislative session. Federal funds are expected to be used to defray about 65 percent of the cost of building the homes in Collins, Kosciusko and Oxford. The bids to build the facilities were higher than anticipated, prompting the latest legislation. The bill authorizes the additional sale of $2.5 million in state bonds for the veterans homes.

Prison construction was among the top issues in view of public concern over criminal activities across the state and a longstanding lawsuit restricting the number of state inmates in local jails.

While a number of bills were approved during the regular legislative session earlier this year to alleviate prison crowding, lawmakers were told further action was necessary or the state could be ordered to pay millions of dollars in federal fines. A hearing is set for Sept. 23 before U.S. District Judge L. T. Senter Jr. on the matter.

The prison construction program is expected to cost around $66.7 million for new buildings and related costs during the present fiscal year, with the additional funding to come from increased tax revenues in recent months rather than new

An increase of $100 million in revenue estimates for the fiscal year which started July 1 was recommended by budget specialists at the start of the special session.

Along with the construction provisions, the prison bill boosts the daily reimbursement to counties for housing state inmates from $10 to $20 per prisoner; authorizes a feasibility study into setting up a special state/local grant program to assist counties in construction or rehabilitation of local jails; designates distinctive zebrastriped uniforms for all inmates, to be phased in starting in January; restricts inmates from possessing individual air conditioners or having a radio, television, record player or similar devices in their cells except when used in a work program or regimented discipline program; and prohibits weight-lifting equipment for inmates in prisons unless used in a work program or regimanted discipline program.

The legislation also directs the Corrections Department to expedite release of about 600 non-violent offenders under a previously approved "house arrest" program and up to 200 inmates on medical release. The Prison Emergency Construction and Management Board will consist of the Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General and State Treasurer. A special oversight committee will be set up to work with the board including six members of the Legislature, the Commissioner of Corrections, and the director of the Department of Finance and Administration.

The board will be granted an exemption from various public bidding and contracting requirements in exercising its emergency powers to remove inmates from county jails, but the bill specifies the exemptions do not apply to construction of the private correctional facilities or new units in Greene and Rankin counties.

There was a lengthy debate in the House involving a proposed minority set-aside to be included in contracts for private correctional facilities. As finally passed, the bill says the Emergency Construction and Management Board may include a 20 percent set-aside for minorities and must explain the reason in its minutes if the set-aside percentage is not met.

The laws establishing the Department of Human Services expired June 30, but the massive agency has continued to operate under an executive order signed by the Governor. The department has been the target of controversy revolving largely around a hotly disputed contract with a Virginia-based firm, Maximus Inc., to take over child support operations in Hinds and Warren counties.

Among the last bills approved was a measure involving the fishing seasons in coastal waters for roe mullet. The bill would, in effect, do away with certain statutory restrictions adopted earlier this year on taking of roe mullet this fall and leave it to the Commission on Marine Resources to determine if limitations were necessary.

It also increases the penalty for unlawful use of gill or trammel nets in marine waters north of Hwy. 90 and restricts out-ofstate commercial fishermen from fishing with the use of nets in Mississippi coastal waters unless their states give Mississippi's fishermen reciprocal

The State Constitution specified the Governor has sole authority to call a special legislative session and designate the maters to be considered during the session.

Farm safety saves lives

By Bethany L. Waldrop MSU Ag Communications

Farming can be a dangerous business with higher numbers of accidents and deaths among workers than mining or construction work. As harvest time draws near, tarmers should take time out to think about farm safety.

Farming keeps its workers busy enough, requiring them to be jacks-of-all-trades - engineers, chemists, economists. managers and repairmen, but farm safety is worth the extra time and planning it may

More than 75,000 Mississippians are employed on farms and ranches — making farm safety a major issue for the Tractors are one of farming's most important tools, and also one of the most dangerous.

"Farming averages 44 deaths per 100.000 workers," said Herb Willcutt, extension agricultural engineer and safety coordinator at Mississippi State University.

Tractors are the No. 1 cause of deaths involving farm activities — one out of every four times a tractor is involved in an accident, the accident is fatal."

Of fatal tractor accidents in Mississippi, 45 percent involve roll-overs, 18 percent involve run-overs and 10 percent involve the use of rotary Willcutt said 83 percent of these deaths could be prevented by using seatbelts and roll-over protective structures.

"Use common sense and take a few minutes each day to troubleshoot accidents on the farm," Willcutt said.

'Spend the extra money for a roll-over cover for tractors — it's a cheap insurance policy.'

Farm equipment should be checked regularly for safety. Before working on any mechanical problems or connecting any equipment, stop the tractor's engine. Turn the engine off and allow it to cool before refueling.

Some machinery accidents and deaths are due to fatigue from the long hours and high pressures that full-time farmers face, but most involve part-time farmers, older farmers or rural homeowners that do not have updated equipment. Most accidents occur in the afternoon and evening between 12 and 8 p.m. These usually involve part-time farmers who do not have safety features on equipment and often are in a hurry," Willcutt said.

To help put safety first with farm machinery, Willcutt encouraged farmers to design a safety checklist, including:

- Examine and replace all protective shields, covers and safety interlocks.
- Make sure all flashers and lights are working.
- · Check to see if slow-moving vehicle emblems are attached, clearly visible and in good
- Equip tractors with rollover protective structures.

properly," Willcutt said.

"If boosting creates a spark, the gases from the battery can cause an explosion."

Many tractor fatalities involve children. These accidents can be prevented easily by never allowing an extra rider or passenger on a tractor especially a child.

"Never allow children to ride on the tractor fender — the slightest lurch of the tractor could cause a child to fall and be seriously injured or killed," Willcutt said.

"Watch little ones closely around equipment that is being operated or serviced."

Willcutt also suggested that farmers use eye and ear

"Your eyes and ears are very vulnerable around machinery. Farm equipment can sling materials, and air from the fan can blow things into your eyes, so use eye protection whenever possible," Willcutt said.

"Ear plugs also are very important, especially for extended operation of

COOKING UP A STORM

Katy McGuire Caire

What are you planning to cook for the long, Labor Day weekend, the festive "farewell to summer" holiday? If you're like so many, you're probably planning barbecue meals of some sort, large or small, ranging from higher-priced steaks and such to burgers or hot dogs (especially if there'll be young

For, we all know that many a youngster will pass up steak or roast for a hamburger or hot dog, as will many adults as well. Pork ribs and beef steaks are top choices for many, as are chicken and seafood. The origin of the barbecue has been debated endlessly over the years, but historians do agree that mankind has been cooking food over open fires ever since the Stone Age, and still doing it to this day.

At any rate, the barbecue has a long history, or I should say histories. Some insist that the word originally referred to the roasting of a whole pig over a gridiron of sorts placed over a hickory wood fire, a method said to have been introduced to America by French hunters and trappers. Hence the world "Barbe a Queue," meaning "from whiskers to tail," from

"I have a 12-year-old cat that is beginning to show signs of aging. Specifically, she is falling from one of her favorite hiding places, the top shelf of a bookcase. I'm concerned she may get injured, but how do I keep her from going up there?"

Cats love to nestle in nooks and crannies, so you will have to make her favorite hiding place a less desirable place for her to be.

One idea is using a mousetrap. Simply put the mousetrap in the area you want her stay away from, and when she jumps she will get a surprise. After a few encounters with the mousetrap, she will more than likely find a safer place to roost. This may sound harsh, but a mousetrap really doesn't pack much of a punch. It's better to scare your cat a bit, rather than to allow it sustain a possibly serious injury.

Mousetraps are an especially good solution for owners who leave their cats alone during the "Last year I got involved in some school activities that the hoods didn't care for. I discovered I had some talent and leadership skills I hadn't used before. I began to see my old friends from a different point of view but still did a few things with them. Since then they have gotten involved in some things that I don't want to be associated with at all.

"I don't want my old group to think that I feel like I'm better than them now that I'm more involved with school activities than they are. I also don't want to give up the new friends I've made. How can I be a part of both groups?" What you're describing reminds me of walking a tightrope. If you don't walk very carefully right down the middle, you're going to get some hard knocks from one side or the other — or maybe both at the same time.

Do you want to be involved in the social life of the school? Do you want to be seen by the teachers and administrators as one who has something positive to contribute? Do you want to go through on the fringes?

It sounds to me as if you actually prefer the involved group rather than the hoods but are afraid to cut ties with them. Take a hard look at what you want for yourself during the rest of high school and afterward. Strongly consider taking the course of action you believe will help you get where you want to be.

TEEN TALK

You said you had discovered some leadership skills. Practice those in your own behalf and head toward a bright future without any negative baggage.

"I'm dating this great-looking guy who's in college. I have another year in high school. He plays hard to get most of the time, but I think he really likes

"My home life is the pits. I don't get along at all with my parents, and I'd like to move out. I've been thinking if I could get him to marry me, that would solve all my problems. He'll be graduating in another year or two, will get a job making big money, and we would have it made.

"One of his friends told me that he dated high school girls for a few months, broke up, and then found another one who was prettier than the one before. I can't believe he would do me that way. Do you think I should push him for a commitment?"

Definitely not. You might be jumping from one pit into a deeper one.

Rather than trying to find a quick way out of your problems at home, you would be better off to try to work those out rather than creating a whole new set with this guy.

Work on making yourself the best person you can be. Then when you are ready for a permanent relationship and find the person you want to join in that relationship, you will be a healthy, whole person. Don't settle for less.

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL Bryan Austin will headline the True Value/Jimmy Dean Sausage Country Showdown for 1994 to be held in Picayune at the high school auditorium on Goodyear Blvd. Labor Day. It is sort of homecoming for the country singer, who was born and reared in Pass Christian. His family and friends are looking forward to his concert since he has been on tour in Arkansas, Kansas, Colorado

WRJW-AM in Picayune will host the Country Showdown which starts at 3 p.m. and will showcase a local talent competition where the winner will take home a trophy, prizes, and cash. The winner will open for Austin's concert. They will also advance to the state contest, to be held at the state fair in

Austin's first job was working as a weekend disc jockey in Bay St. Louis. WRJW-AM helped to boost the young man's career in music several years back when he was a student at Hancock High School and his music. His uncle, Vernon Ladair name was "Ace" Cuevas (his record company, Patriot, changed his name).

"We've known him for a long time, and we're proud to be bringing him home for his first concert," said WRJW's station manager Delores Wood.

Many living in this area remember Austin's keen interest in music as a very young boy. He spent hours memorizing songs he heard on country radio. He loved watching bands perform live and often brought a recorder to tape their shows.

Austin started playing saxo-phone in a country band when he was eight years old, but his real love was for the guitar. He learned to play the guitar in secret because his father wanted him to be a sax player. He focused his attention on perfecting his guitar playing when he was 11, then formed his own band, Mississippi Pride, a year

Austin's family supported him in his quest to make his mark on the field of country

ner, urged him to sing in his country band and paid for his first recording session at age 15.

His talents were recognized locally, he had a loyal following among residents who caught his act at various locations on the coast. Vince Gill, among others, has influenced Austin's style of singing. His voice has a soft quality similar to Gill's.

Austin's talent was brought to the attention of music manager Diane Gibson, who heard his tapes and loved the sound. She is now his manager.

His debut album, Bryan Austin, has met with rave reviews and features several songs he co-wrote and his first single "Radio Active." It contains the very sort of material he respects, songs that are to the point and from the heart - road tested and audience approved.

Tickets for the day's events are $10 for general addmission and $15 for reserved seating and are available at the door or by calling 1-800-284-5036.

Acts will compete for a great slate of prizes, including $250 cash and trophy, plus the opporional finals in the fall.

Winners of the six regional contests will be flown expensepaid to the national final to compete for the grand prize of $50,000 cash and recording contract and the national title. The event is designed to find the most promising country music talent in America, giving these performers a chance to launch their professional careers. Showdown audiences may be seeing, hearing and applauding the next Reba McEntire, Garth Brooks or

Alan Jackson. The showdown is open to voctunity to perform in the state al and/or instrumental perforshowdown to be held later this mers, individuals or groups of year. State winners, each of up to seven members, who have whom earns a $1,000 cash not performed on a record listed prize, will advance to the reg- in the national record charts of Billboard, Radio and Records, or the Gavin Report within 18 months preceding the local competition. There is a $5 entry fee, and all contestants must begin their competition by performing at showdowns produced by participating country music radio stations. A uniform judging system on all levels of the competition ensures fairness.

Entry forms are available at participating True Value Hardware stores and Jimmy Dean outlets, or by calling WRJW at 601-798-4835.

PRCC choir invited to perform in England

Pearl River Community College's concert choir, The Pearl River Singers, will perform in the prestigious Bristol Music Series at the cathedral in Bristol, England.

The annual musical, usually a series of organ concerts, made an exception and invited the PRCC choir to perform next PRCC choral music director Dr. Mark Malone of Hattiesburg received the invitation this month. Malone, director of the concert choir, the River-Road show choir and The Voices ensemble, is beginning his 10th year at Pearl River.

"We are extremely pleased to be afforded the honor to perform in the Bristol series," Malone said. "And we are excited about the opportunities to sing in the other cathedrals

The choir will also sing in Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral. Malone said the choir also received an invitation to sing in the Sunday morning services at the Cathed ral of St. Martin-in-the-Field in London's Trafalgar Square.

Choir members will take night passage across the English Channel to France and will drive to Paris for a concert in the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

Gourmet extravaganza coming up Nov. 6

The Mississippi Coast Restaurant & Beverage Association will present its 12th annual 'Chefs of the Coast Gourmet Extravaganza' Sunday, Nov. 6 from 4-10 p.m. at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum and Convention Center, Hwy. 90, Biloxi.

Admission is a $35 donation per person, which includes dinner, cocktails, entertainment and door prize drawings. Advanced tickets are available from association members or at the Coast's three Holiday Inn restaurants.

Tickets may also be purchased at the association's office at Bailey Plaza, Suite 7-B, Biloxi. Proceeds are used to aid community projects supported by the association and to provide scholarship funds for students planning to enter the restaurant and lounge professions.

More than 60 popular restaurants, lounges and suppliers will participate in the event, which will feature salads, soups, appetizers, gumbos, entrees, vegetables, breads and desserts, especially selected from their most favorite menu items.

Unique seafood specialties, as well as ethnic dishes will be highlighted in the gourmet

Ticket holders are eligible for prizes to be awarded throughout the event. According to association officials, attendance at last year's extravaganza was more than 1,100. Because of the ticket limitations, organizers urge those interested in attending to purchase tickets early to avoid disappointment.

The Second Phase of 'A Place of Art III' will be the Art Tour/ Exhibit and Sale on Saturday, Oct. 8 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 9 from 1-5

During the tour, the first two blocks of Main Street in Bay St. Louis will become a walking mall lined with fine art artists exhibiting and offering their original works for sale.

Interest in this event has grown tremendously year after year with over 15,000 attending

Because of this growing patronage, the committee extended the Tour for two days.

In August, the signature artist was announced. This artist's work will be featured on the cover of the Artist's Directory that is given to those attending the Patron's Party and Tour. The signature art work is featured on invitations. post cards and fans for A Place Of Art III.

The event is dedicated to featuring the exceptional artists works of the Gulf South region and invites the public to enjoy the historic and significant art community of Bay St. Louis.

New course will unleash students' potential

A new course designed to unleash leadership potential began Monday as part of Pearl River Community College's Honors Program.

Academic Dean Wes Estey told Pearl River's Board of Trustees that 25 students have registered for the class, which started Monday for the first time at PRCC.

The course will help students become aware of the moral and ethical responsibilities of leadership," said Estey. "It will provide the opportunity to develop essential skills through study and observation of these

The sophomore students, all with 3.0 grade point averages or better, were chosen from nominations submitted by academic and technical instructors. Each student will receive three hours of academic credit that will transfer to a university.

Phi Theta Kappa, the international honor society for twoyear colleges, designed the course, which is funded in part by the Kellogg Foundation. Estey said the class is paving new ground. In the future, Pearl Kiver may oner the course to community leaders not enrolled at the college.

The course will focus on developing leadership abilities. It will provide a basic understanding of leadership and group dynamics theory.

Estey said another unique aspect of the class is the instructional approach. A team of three PRCC instructors will teach the class. The instructors are Frank Robicheaux from the math department, Susan Donohue of the social science department, and Norma Jean Hammill from biological sciences.

The course encourages participants to develop their leadership potential and to engage in productive leadership behavior.

Students will develop skills including: leading with goals, leading by serving, team building, applying ethics to leader-

Hancock Holding Co., First Denham Bancshares Inc. announce merger

Leo W. Seal Jr., CEO of Hancock Holding Company and Robert E. Easterly, CEO of First Denham Bancshares Inc. in Denham Springs, La. announce they have executed an agreement to merge whereby 100 percent of the capital stock of First Denham Bancshares Inc. will be acquired by Hancock Holding Company for approximately $26 million.

The transaction contemplates a tax-free exchange primarily of Hancock Holding Company common stock and is subject to normal regulatory filings and approvals, including approval by First Denham's shareholders.

Hancock Holding Company is the $2 billion multi-bank parent corporation of Hancock Bank, located South Mississippi and Hancock Bank of Baton Rouge, La. It operates 58 banking offices and 86 automated teller machines. Hancock Bank is listed by Veribank, Inc. as one of the strongest, safest financial institutions in the United States.

First Denham Bancshares Inc. is the parent organization of First National Bank of Denham Springs, Louisiana which operates seven banking locations throughout Livingston Parish, La., with assets of $110 million. It was established in June, 1964. Livingston Parish, adjacent to East Baton Rouge Parish, is a community of 78,000 and one of the fastest growing areas in Louisiana.

First National Bank of Denham Springs will remain as a separate wholly-owned subsidiary of Hancock Holding Company and will maintain its name, its local board of directors and management team. According to Robert E. Esterly, Denham Springs chairman and CEO, "this partnership will provide our customers with a broader variety of lending services, expanded trust facilities and investment alternatives, such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds and annuities.

"The benefits for our shareholders include an excellent return on their investment and the improved liquidity that results from owning a publicly traded stock. For our employees, this agreement will provide greater resources to call upon in their efforts to meet the growing needs of our customers."

Bridger Eglin, president of Hancock Bank of Louisiana, called this a "partnership of strong, community-based customer-driven financial institutions." Eglin noted that the agreement allows for management decisions to continue being made locally as they've been for the past 30 years. First National Bank ATM cardholders and Hancock Bank Handy 24 cardholders will benefit by gaining access to over 50 24-hour machines located in the Baton Rouge metroplex.

Hancock Holding Company stock is traded on the NASDAQ National market under the symbol HBHC and is found in the NASDAQ newspaper quotations under the abbreviation HancHd.

Confused about redfish

The fishing report this week isset to rely on reports from the fishing buildies as the Turtle has been under the weather and unable to go fishing.

There were two major concerns that the fishin' buddies related to me. The number one item the fishin' buddies related was their concern about the rumors of another change in the redfish laws.

I am sorry to say that this is not a rumor. And, as I attended the meeting of the DMR commission, at which redfish were discussed, maybe I can relate some of the events, and discussion, that occurred at that meeting regarding redfish.

The Gulf Coast Conservation Association (GCCA) demanded at the most recent meeting of the Department of Marine Resources that DMR hold a rehearing on the new redfish minimum size limitation of 16 inches that went into effect July 1 of this year. DMR just recently passed the ordinance, which lowered the size limit on redfish from 22 inches to 16 inches. GCCA wants 18 inches.

At the commission meeting, DMR Commissioners expressed disbelief that GCCA could make a demand to change the size limit again and go from 16 inches to 18 inches.

One commissioner pointed out that the change to the 16-inch size was at the written request of more than 5,000 local fishermen after several public meetings were held. The change to 16 inches put Mississippi in the position of having a size limit equivalent to the states on either border.

This eliminated the confusion that existed between the bordering states and had the added benefit of simplifying law enforcement. One commission-stated biological studies could not show the 16-size limitation would have any negative effect on the red drum population. GCCA demanded an 18 inches minimum size despite the public hearing input.

At least one commissioner doubted if the size change represented the wishes of the membership of the GCCA. He said he talks to the average man fishing along the Coast, and the average man is very happy with the new 16-inch size limit.

He said that for the first time the average fisherman can get to take a redfish home to eat. According to this commissioner. the only ones who are not happy are the elite leadership of GCCA and the offshore fishermen who want the great big fish. But they are in the minority.

GCCA further wanted the new redfish ordinance changed to eliminate the commercial catch of redfish. They said Mississippi is the only coastal state allowing commercial catch of redfish and it should be stopped.

Commissioner Lee responded that he has evidence in his briefcase of at least 350,000 pounds of illegal, bootleg redfish, that were caught and sold from Mississippi last

He said enforcement of current laws is the best conservation measure. He further stated that Louisiana reported 11 million pounds of redfish caught in their state last year and still had an escapement rate of 70%. Mr. Van Devender, the fisheries manager of DMR, argued at length that Louisiana's escapement rate was not 70% but was 69%. The Feds require an escapement rate of at least 30%. Commissioner Asper finally put up a motion to have ap addi- interest of either the resource or tional public hearing on the size change for input purposes only. DMR will hold the new hearing on redfish Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. The hearing will be in the Scott Marine Education Building in

Since most of the fishin' buddies know the Turtle generally is slightly "opinionated" when it comes to stuff concerning fishing, I just wanna say "Baa, humbug, fooie."

There are not enough law enforcement personnel to be everywhere and enforce all of the laws. This means a clear understanding of the laws and the moral turpitude to obey the law is the most important factor in our fisheries laws. In other words, all the laws in the world can be written, but by and large people must believe and understand the laws to consistently obey them.

In the case of all of this foolishness and changing the redfish laws several times a year, a great potential exists for total disregard and contempt of the redfish laws.

This certainly will do no good for the redfish resource. I personally feel this is nothing more than a power move on the part of GCCA and has nothing at all to do with the redfish resource.

Just a final point of interest on redfish, then I will move on. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is scheduled to review the redfish management plan next year. They will probably change things again.

GCCA management indicated they were fully aware that the Feds will probably institute some changes in the redfish management plan next year, so your guess is as good as mine as to why they want to create all of this confusion. Certainly it cannot be in the best good resource management to continually have so much confusion.

I said at the beginning of this week's column there were two major items the fishin' buddies were concerned about. The second item of concern was the almost complete lack of live shrimp at the bait dealers.

It seems the only reliable source of live shrimp in the entire Hancock County is LaFrance Fish Camp in Ansley. Even LaFrance runs out frequently.

A few times they have limited the number of shrimp a person can purchase at one time. Give them a phone call before you drive down (467-9180). A phone call might save you some valuable fishin' time.

So, what are the fishin' buddies gonna do about live shrimp if they are not available? Use live mullet or live poogie. You can generally find some swimming either close to the seawall or around culverts emptying into the Sound. All you need is the ability to use a cast net. By the way, you might also need a cast net to test out your ability.

This week's wonderful wise words: Best fishing time this past week has been in the morning with a rising tide.

Do some people value personal power more than the resources, Turtle?

Mississippis dore season is just around the corner for most hunters in the state, but those in southern Mississippi will have to wait a little longer to enjoy their sport.

The Saturday before Labor Day is the traditional start of dove season, but hunting in the southern part of the state will be delayed a few weeks.

The Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks divided the state into two zones for this year's season. The south zone includes Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River, Stone, George, Pike, Walthall, Marion, Lamar, Forrest, Perry and Greene counties.

"Hunters in southern Mississippi wanted to delay the hunting season to give birds migrating from the Midwest enough time to get there, said Randy Spender, wildlife coordinator with the Mississippi Depart-ment of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

The first dove season in the north zone begins Sept. 3 and ends Sept. 25. The second season will run from Oct. 15 until Nov. 13. The third season will begin Dec. 26 and run through Jan. 1. .

The south zone's first season will run from Sept. 24 through Oct. 9. The second season is from Nov. 19 until Dec. 10, and the third season will be from Dec. 24 until Jan. 14.

Spencer estimates this year's dove harvest to be more than 2 million birds. Population figures are the same as in other vears.

"We have plenty of birds so there is no reason to expect we DOVE-Page 5B won't have a good dove season this year," Spencer said. The daily bag limit for doves is 15 birds per day with the possession limit being 30. All dove hunters between the ages of 16 and 65 must have a Mississippi small game hunting license. If hunters were born after Jan. 1, 1972, they are required to complete a hunter education course.

Even though the season might be starting later for some hunters, Dr. Wes Burger, research scientist with Mississippi State University's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries. said grain fields are some of the best places to hunt for doves.

"Recently harvested corn, wheat, rice, brown top millet and sunflower fields provide excellent areas for dove hunting." Burger said.

Dove hunters also should be familiar with legal hunting

"All private land in Mississippi is considered posted, so hunters do need landowner permission before hunting, Spencer said.

Dove hunting is permitted on many state wildlife areas. Hunters should check area regulations before hunting.

Even though grain fields are excellent hunting fields, baiting a field is illegal.

Fields must be under normal agricultural practices,' Burger said. "Baiting a field, which is distributing food, grain or salt to attract the birds, is prohibited by federal law." Hunters should observe basic safety procedures while hunting to ensure a safe dove season.

The most common safety problem in dove hunting is hunters shooting at low birds," Spencer said. "There are a lot of people in the field so hunters should pass up those shots at low birds."

Since dove hunting often is a social sport, many hunters hunt in large groups. Burger said hunters in groups should pay attention to the direction of shots.

"Hunters should be positioned around the field so that no one is in the direct line of fire from the other side," Burger

75th Lipton Cup set

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The 75th Lipton Cup Regatta will be hosted by the Pass Christian Yacht Club September 2-5. Pass Christian is the defending champion of the Lipton Cup. Last year's crew was John Dane, Captain, Eric Doyle, Danny Killeen, and Kevin Northrup.

The Lipton Cup Regatta is named in honor of Sir Thomas Lipton, a man who set such high standards for sportsmanship.

Sir Thomas donated a Silver Cup bearing his name to the Southern Yacht Club to foster competitive racing. The first competition for the Lipton Cup was held in 1920 between Pensacola Yacht Club and the Southern Yacht Club. The Pensacola Yacht Club won the cup that first year and set the standard for competitive racing.

Sir Thomas was the founder of the Lipton Tea Company and was self-made millionaire by the time he was 21 years young.

By 1930 the Royal Yacht Club of England had given him membership due to the efforts he made for yachting in the America's Cup Challenge. By 1937 the regatta had twelve different yacht clubs participating in it. The regatta had to overcome problems also. The start of the second world war and Hurricane Camille. Hurricanes had never stopped the Lipton Cup Regatta, Hurricane Camille was no exception. The races were held as scheduled at the New Orleans Yacht

In 1969 the Lipton Cup adopted the Flying Scott as the rinter-club boat.

Pass Christian Yacht Club is the defending champion of the regatta. In most recent years, the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club has enjoyed the most recent success winning the cup 15 times in the last 30 years. Southern Yacht Club leads the pack with 17 titles, followed by the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club with 15, Pensacola Yacht Club has 11. Biloxi Yacht Club has 8, St. Andrews Yacht Club has 7, St. Petersburg has 4, Sarasota Yacht Club has 3, the New Orleans Yacht Club, Eastern Yacht Club, Mobile Yacht Club. and the Pass Christian Yacht Club each have 2 titles. The Buccaneer Yacht Club and the Gulfport Yacht Club have 1 title

The Lipton Cup Regatta is a competition between members of the Gulf Yachting Association rather than individuals.

Race courses shall be at least 5-8 miles with not less than on 2third of the race being to windward. At least three legs of a course must be sailed for an official Lipton Cup race. The time limit for each race is two and one-half hours.

A club must field a different skipper for each of the four races, and a skipper cannot crew in another race. A crew member can race in two races. The combined weight of the crew must be greater than 425 pounds and there is not a maximum weight limit. A club can sail two to four people aboard, including the skipper.

On September 2, there is a dinner from 6:30 to 9:30 for the

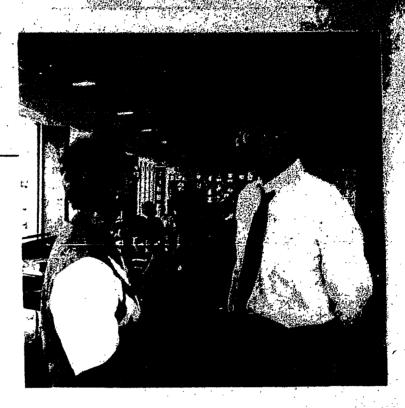

On September 3, the first race starts at 2:20 pm. On September 4, there are two races at 10:20 am and 2:50 pm.

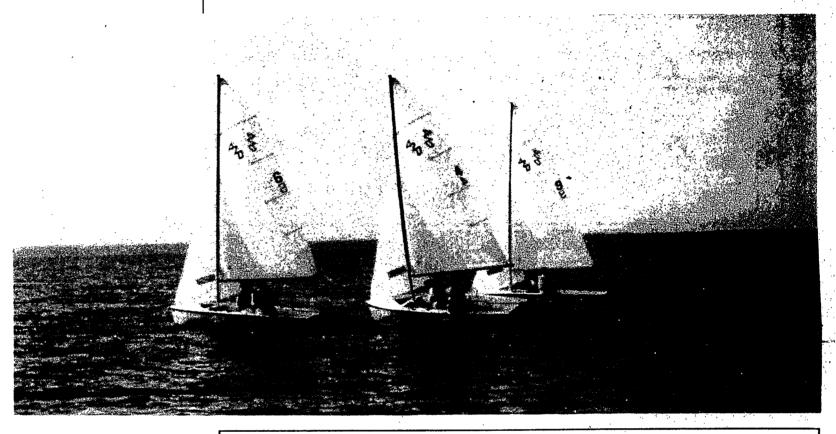

September 5, the final race will begin at 10:20 am with the trophy presentation at 2pm.

For more information please call Pat Mowry at 452-9654.

Planning the regatta

Nita Beall and Jeff Emerson talk over plans for the upcoming 1994 Lipton Regatta hosted by the Pass Christian Yacht Club. The chairmen for the event have been meeting to fine tune the schedule of activities. Sailors from all 30 Gulf Yachting Association clubs have been invited to participate. The sailing vessels below, called Flying Scots, took part in a similar regatta.

Crew Alan Uram, age 15 of Bay St. Louis, and skipper David Dabney, age 17 of Mobile, competed in the US Sailing/Rolex Junior Championships in Charleston, South Carolina. They sailed 420s in the doublehanded division of the championships.

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Alan Uram, Sanders Kane, John Dane, and Oliver Peneguy competed in the US Sailing/ Rolex Junior Championships held in Charleston, South Carolina, on August 12-17.

Alan Uram, of Bay St. Louis, and David Dabney, of Mobile, sailed 420s in the event's doublehanded division against nine other regional champions. They finished second overall claiming the silver medal.

Uram and Dabney gained entry in the national event by winning the Area D championship.

Oliver Peneguy and John Dane, of Pass Christian, and Sanders Kane, of Bay St. Louis, competed in the US Sailing/ Rolex Junior Championships held in Charleston, South Carolina, on August 12-17. They sailed J22s in the championship's triplehanded division against nine other regional champions. The team placed third overall claiming the bronze medal.

Wildcats open season against Delta

Pearl River Community College football 1994 will open where it left off last year in the Mississippi Delta.

Thanks to rescheduling by the state association, the Wildcats will take on the Mississippi Delta Trojans, defending national champions, at 7 p.m. Thursday in Moorhead to start the new season.

On Nov. 4, 1993, the undefeated Trojans beat the Wildcats 35-28, even though Pearl River racked up 409 yards of total offense. It ended the Wildcats' season. but set the stage for Delta to claim the state title the following week with a 21-20 decision over Jones. The Trojans captured the national crown with a 20-16 victory over Nassau, New York in early December.

"What a way to start the season," said PRCC head coach Willie Coats. "I understand they have just reloaded at Delta. They will be really good."

Delta Coach James Gray retired earlier this year, and defensive assistant Jim Southward was named head coach.

"Any team who won the national championship will have a lot of pride and a lot of momentum," said Coats.

"With coach Southward, I expect little change," said Coats. "After all, you have the same offensive and defensive coordinators back from a 12-0 national championship team.

Coats said he would use the short week of practice to get his players sharper.

"We need to get everyone's legs back under them," Coats said. "I think we will be ready to play. At least we will have a good indication of our strength and weaknesses early this season."

The Wildcats are basically starting over. Of the 15 players expected to see action on offense early against Delta, only Jermaine Roberts could be called a starter in the backfield.

Roberts picked up 73 yards on eight attempts last year against Delta. He finished the year with 461 yards on 58 carries for two touchdowns. Of course, Roberts' stats were second to All-American fullback Chris Ryan, who rushed for 1,425 yards and 16 touchdowns. Ryan scored one touchdown while rushing for 177 yards against Delta last year.

Joining Roberts in the backfield will be freshmen Dexter Dean of Petal, Kenshun Smith of Atlanta, and sophomore fullback Terry Griffin of Columbia. Wide receivers include Johnny Tart of Hattiesburg and Kahri Walker of Picayune.

Neither Tart or Walker caught a pass last year for the Wildcats.

Jerel Posey of Pell City, Ala., appears to have the starting nod at quarterback. However, Jarvis Lipscomb of Columbus, Ga., and Jason Simon of Columbia will see playing time. All three are freshmen.

On the right side will be Clint Stuart of Oak Grove at tackle and Joseph Scales of Bassfield at guard. Left tackle Brian Riels of Petal has improved from a knee injury and may see action. Roberts will then move to right guard to replace freshman Joseph Scales.

The punter is Poplarville freshman Kirk Myrick. Freshman Jimmy Williams of Bay St. Louis is the kicker.

The Wildcats should be pretty tough on defense. Defensive backs include Kevin Hathorn and Johnnie Mickell, both of Bassfield, Charles Myers of Petal, Harold Pope of Livingston, Ala., Fim Kelly of Poplarville and Chgward (spelling OK) Williams of Jeaneretta, La. Sophomore defensive back starter Brent Sones is still nursing a knee injury.

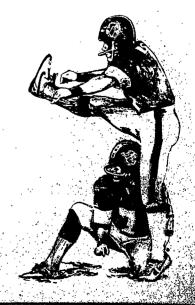

The defensive line includes nose-guard Chester Richard of Jennings, La. Starting defensive linemen are Matt Hilburn of Columbia, Danny Dillard of Huntsville, Ala., and Eddie Conerly of Kokomo. Linebackers include Bobby Doyle of Bay St. Louis, Charles Mariner of Prentiss, Jeffrey Posey of Bassfield and Marcus Hall of Prentiss. Pearl River owns the series record with 25 victories, nine losses and two ties. The Wildcats beat Delta 42-13 in 1992, but lost 35-15 in 1989 at Delta.

Before that, Pearl River had won 10 games with one tie dating back through 1972. In 1981 the Wildcats beat the Trojans 27-14 in the regular season and then 19-7 in the first game of the state playoffs.

Delta beat PRCC four straight years from 1964 through 1967.

Not only did the game start an hour later than its scheduled 8 p.m. kicken time, but the Hawks were overpowered by the formidable size of the opposing team.

The Hawks lost for the third straight time against the Indians with the final score

The Hawks did well in the first quarter with 101 yards rushing and six first downs. Tailback J.J. Hays had 79 of those yards, which included a 58-yard run.

Unfortunately, Hays was hurt and was unable to return to the game. He had to be taken to the hospital.

The Indians won the coin toss at the beginning of the game, but elected to receive in the second half.

Hancock started their first play on their own 25-yard line and on first down, advanced the ball only two yards.

After several downs, gaining yardage slowly and systematically, the Hawks advanced into Indian territory.

The Hawks were up to the Indian's 38-yard line when the ball was funbled and recovered by the Indians with 7:58 left in the first quarter.

The Indians completed a pass for five yards and received a penalty before fumbling the ball themselves. The recovery was made by the Hawks with 6:18 left in the first.

Although the Hawks had recovered possession of the ball in Indian territory, they were held in check by the defensive power of the Indians.

Hancock was unable to obtain a first down and on third down received an illegal procedure penalty and were forced to punt the ball.

The punt was partially blocked and the Indians regained possession on their own 35-yard line.

The Hawks were to try again, starting at their own 20-yard

With their first possession, the Hawks lost two yards. Then, on second down, Hays advanced the ball from the Hawk's 18-yard line to the Indian's 26 for his 58-yard dash. The Hawks ended the first quarter without a score, but had advanced to the Indian's 20-yard line. The Hawks were unable to proceed and decided to go for the field goal.

The field goal attempt was no good with 10:57 left in the second quarter.

The Indians battled on their next possession, which started at the Hawk's 20-yard line, to gain yardage

Then, with 8:54 left in the half, Booth scored a 53-yard touchdown on a quarterbackkeeper. The extra point was good and the Indians led with a score of 14-0.

Hancock started their next drive on their own 20 and on their first possession Bradley Perniciaro gained 11 yards to bring the Hawks to their own 31-yard line.

Hays then gained the Hawks another seven yards on the next snap.

On the second and third downs, the Hawks were unable togain any jardage, so the team elected to punt.

The Indians received a penalty so the Hawks again gained a first down at their own 43-yard

The Hawks were unable to use the penalty to their advantage and were eventually forced to punt the ball away, again.

The Indians quarterback decided to go to the air again, but was intercepted by Roland Cuevas with 2:25 left in the enough yardage for a first down and were forced to punt.

Booth attempted to pass the ball to gain some yardage on their next possession.

But, on the first two downs, the Hawks were able to knock the ball out of the air and out-ofbounds.

This ended the first half and Hancock kicked off to Biloxi. On their first possession of the second half, Biloxi was unable to advance and Hancock forced the punt. Starting on their own 32-yard line, the Hawks gained seven vards on first down.

On second down, the Hawks gained four more yards and the first down.

The ball was fumbled on third down and Biloxi recovered with 8:15 left in the third

Biloxi did not have the ball long before the Hawks again intercepted the ball with 6:55 left in the third.

After losing several yards and an incomplete pass, the Hawks were forced to punt.

The Indians advanced the ball successfully, then with 2:24 left in the third quarter, the Indians scored again with a 21-yard touchdown run.

The kick was good and the Indians now led the Hawks

The Hawks battled, but couldn't win on their next possession with penalties, incomplete and deflected passes and were forced to punt.

Biloxi exploded on their next possession with a 50-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter with 11:08 on the clock. The kick was no good and the score was 27-0.

The Hawks and the Indians only had one possession apiece for the rest of the game.

Hancock was forced to punt their possession away and the game ended with the Indians having the ball.

ages, both pros and amateurs, can compete in. She defeated Robinson in 48 minutes. Before this championship, Spinks reached the quarterfinals of the Minute Maid Open held three weeks ago in Mahwah, New Jersey. She was defeated by the eventual champion Aida Khalation. Khalation commented on Lovick-Spinks, "That 34 yearold mother of two was my toughest match of the tournament.'

Spinks is sponsored by Casino Magic Corporation. She has represented Casino Magic for the last year and a half. During that span of time, she has won 16 tournament championships. As the Director for Tennis at Casino Magic, Spinks travels all around the country promoting tennis, her sponsor, and trying out new styles and approaches to the game. Her main objective is to see what works and what doesn't.

When asked about her travels, she commented, "I want the Coast to have some of the best tennis in the country. I travel to promote my sponsor (Casino Magic), my tennis, and also the Coast. I would like to bring pro tournaments to the Coast. I want to do for tennis on the Coast what Casino Magic has done for boxing on the Coast."

Lovick-Spinks has a certified No. 1 ranking by the United States Professional Tennis Association. This is the highest certification given by the USP-TA for playing and/or teaching. She plays a heavy part for Head Racquet Sports by being on their National Advisory Committee. She also has a contract with Head Racquet Sports.

Spinks is the Director for New Orleans Junior Team Tennis, which has practice each

Wednesday evening. She moderates tennis at the Audubon Tennis Center in New Orleans. Spinks also conducts her own summer instructional camps. She commented on her Magic Tennis Summer Camp, "This past summer I had 258 kids come through my camp in 8 weeks. The camps were extremely successful as the children improved every aspect of their game."

Lovick-Spinks travels all over the country to promote tennis and her sponsors. She plays in numerous tournaments. When asked how she prepares herself for the tournaments, she elaborated, "I train vigorously. I jump lots of rope and swim. I cross train with muscle stregthening, biking, and running. My track coach is Billy Ray Hobley of the Harlem Globetrotters. I run sprints and short distances. With all this, I throw in agility drills and aerobics. I top it all off by living on a diet."

Some upcoming venues where Lovick-Spinks will be displaying her talents ar New York City, North Carolina, South Carolina, and California.

This Sunday she will be performing an exhibition for Head

Racquet Sports in Central Park in New York City. She will also be attending the Women's Tennis Awards Gala and the National Tennis Teachers Conference.

Next, she will travel to participate in the Womens 30 Clay Court National Championships held in Charleston, North Carolina. From there, she heads to La Quinta, California, to compete in the United States Professional Tennis Association's Open Tournament, Finally, she tops off her road trip to Hilton Head, South Carolina, to compete in the $25,000 United States Professional Tennis Registry Tournament. Spinks reached the finals of this tournament last year. She commented, "I will win this tournament. Nobody believed me when I said I would reach the finals last year and I did. So now I'm gonna win it."

Tennis is not this sportswriter's strongpoint, but I know a good one when I see one. Margaret Lovick-Spinks is for real and the community needs to know that. Good luck to Margaret Lovick-Spinks as she represents Casino Magic, Bay St. Louis, and the Coast.

NOTICE TO THE CITIZENS OF

The Board of Aldermen has directed me to advise the public of the following:

- 1. On Saturday, August 27, 1994, we made a sweep of the entire City and picked up all trash on the right-of-ways. These right-of-ways are now free of all trash and we would appreciate the citizens help to keep it
- 2. Boudin's Waste & Recycling will continue to pick up everything that is bagged, bundled or boxed, (on your regularly scheduled pick up days) but will not pick up the following:
 - a. furniture & appliances
 - b. air conditioners

 - d. construction & lot clearing debris

Call Boudin's Waste & Recycling @ 467-5452 to make arrangements for him to pick up these items and dispose of for a reasonable price. The City can no longer pick these items up because of having no place to dispose of them. If any more of these items are put on right-of-ways, the individual will be fined $50, for littering in accordance with Ordinance #82.

The City will send around a chipper and trash truck, to dispose of limbs and branches (NO TREE TRUNKS OR LARGE LIMBS AND NO LEAVES) on the following schedule:

- 1. First Ward the first Wednesday of the month.
- 2. Second Ward the second Wednesday of the month.
- 3. Third Ward the third Wednesday of the month.
- 4. Fourth Ward the fourth Wednesday of the month.

PLEASE HELP KEEP THE CITY CLEAN, WITH US WORKING TOGETHER, IT CAN BE KEPT THAT WAY.

Thank you for your continued cooperation, BARBARA A. RAPPOLD, Mayor Pra-Town

BY JOSEPH W. CEX-II Situp, all you couch potatoes, because the college football season is about to kick off:

This Saturday marks the opening day of college football, and I know one person who will be glued to the TV screen to watch the Rebels of Ole Miss take on the Tigers of Auburn.

Even the off-season scandals with the Rebels would not hinder me from watching them take on Auburn. A team is on probation but sports the nation's longest winning streak.

College Football is 125 years old this year. In 1869 Rutgers and Princeton met to play the first-ever football game. A game that resembled soccer more than it did the football that we know. Rutgers won 6-4.

The game of football is ferocious, sometimes corrupt, and never politically correct. However, football is also graceful and full of color. It is so full of color that it sometimes resembles a late October New England forest

The game has produced more heroes than all Hollywood studios combined. The spectacle of football is unparalleled in the American society with college football being its most graceful.

Sure, pee-wee leagues and high school is where it all begins, and the pros are men being paid to play a game; how-ever, college football is the facet that retains more pride and glory than the others. This is where a nation can see a young boy from Anytown, USA, lead his team of nobodies into the annals of history and to legen-

On college football Saturday, Memorial Stadium in Lincoln becomes the third largest city in Nebraska when the Cornhuskers play. No sporting team professional or collegiate - can boast a string of 100,000-plus crowds the way the Michigan Wolverines can. Where else but in the South can a football game

As each season started, legendary coach John Heisman ask, "What is it?" and answer his own question.

"A prolate spheroid—that is, an elongated sphere — in which the outer leather casing is drawn tightly over a somewhat smaller rubber tubing." He would then pause a moment before continuing, "Better to have died a small boy than to fumble this football.

Some sportswriters say that baseball and golf are pristine and placid, and that the pop of shoulder pads have nothing on the crack of the bat. The imagery one sees in the azaleas at Augusta National or in the cathedrals like Wrigley Field and Fenway Park may be greater than Neyland Stadium or in Happy Valley. Certainly, there isn't anything genuine about the way Michigan State fans used to shout, "Kill, Bubba, kill" back in the late 1960's to demigod defensive end Bubba Smith.

Laugh and joke all you want about the so-called "color and pageantry." Then take a close look at Notre Dame players enter the stadium at South Bend and the students at Ole Miss in their coat and tie and Sunday dresses. Then one will see the color and the pageantry of it all. College football is graceful and holds its own with the other sports.

College football annals are games, heroes, and even legends. These heroic acts and feats of skill number many. The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame. "Bruiser" Kinard, Jim Thorpe, Roy Riegels and his infamous wayward run, Archie Who?, Dick Butkus, and the Gipper.

Baseball fans can have Roger Angell and James Thurber. I'll be satisfied with Grantland Rice, who describes Red Grange draw bigger crowds than a city. And citizely a gray encaptian with wide. Southern Baptish revival into the game, that rival hands

Tad Jones, the longtime coach at Yale, used to motivate would hold up a football and, his players before the game by saying, "Gentlemen, you are about to play football for Yale against Harvard. Never again in your life will you do anything so important.

Army had the likes of Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside, arguably college football's best one-two punch of all-time. Both were Heisman Trophy winners and Blanchard coming from a small high school called St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi. Fordham had the Seven Blocks of Granite, and the Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech that once defeated Cumberland College 222-0.

For 125 years college football has filled our lives with passion and flavor. Willie Morris, a southern writer, once stated, "Down here in the South, college football is a religion and the Sabbath day is Saturday." It does not matter what game is being played. It could be Army-Navy, USC-UCLA, or Lehigh-Lafayette; Alabama-Auburn or Michgan-Michigan State. The game is played on a grand scale. It may not be perfect, but for three hours on a autumn Saturday, college football's blemishes are wiped away by its myriad triumphs.

It is hard to pick an all-time team in college football because everyone has his or her own opinion as to who was the best filled with great players, and which one was/is really their hero. I'll give you my pick and then you think about it and decide on your own.

Offense - QB Archie Manning (Mississippi), RB Gale Sayers (Syracuse), RB Red Grange (Illinois), FB Felix A. "Doc" Blanchard (Army), OL Jim Parker (Ohio State), OL John Hanah (Alabama), OL Anthony Munoz (USC), OL Bill Fralic (Pittsburgh), C Dave Rimington as "... a streak of fire, a breath (Nebraska), TE Mike Ditka of flame, eluding all who reach (Pittsburgh), SE Jerry Rice Russell Ergleben Defense - DL Reggie White Tennessee), DL Bubba Smith (Michigan State), DL Mike Reid (Penn State), DL Randy White (Maryland), LB Dick Butkus (Illinois), LB Cassius Ware (Mississippi), Jack Ham (Penn State), LB Cornelius Bennett (Alabama), DB Jim Thorpe (Carlisle), DB Ronnie Lott (USC). Stevon Moore (Mississippi), PR Raghib Ismail (Notre Dame), KR Tim Brown (Notre Dame).

The coach of my all-time team would be Paul "Bear" Bryant.

This team, of course, is of my own selection. I'm sure that each person has their own personal feelings, and you should, because each of the great players in football have their own special following.

I would like to end with a quote from George Ade, a playwright and Purdue football fan. He stated:

When the crisp autumn zephyrs whistle through the leafless trees;

When croquet is a sweet regret and tennis non est; When the baseball player stays indoors for fear he will freeze And the picnic trousers get a needed rest; When the mackinaws and yellow shoes are packed away with care,

And the summer sash becomes a muffler gay,

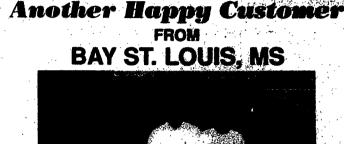

Then the college football specialist emerges from his lair, And buckles up his armor for the fray."

Good luck to all your respective teams in their upcoming season, and sit up on that couch so that you can see the grace and glory of the college football extravaganza.

Here's to the next 125 years!

Pirates face Bulldogs in first home game

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Pass Christian Pirates will be anchored at home this week when the Vancleave Bulldogs come to call, but will the stadium on North Street prove to be safe harbor?

Although the 2-A Pirates defeated the 3-A Forrest County Aggies 27-15 last week, Pass head coach Joseph Brown said the team isn't getting complacent about hosting the 3-A

"We're expecting another war. Vancleave got some votes in the state poll, so evidently somebody up there thinks highly of them, and we have a lot of respect for them, too.

"Vancleave is another team with a big running back and a big offensive line. Their numbers aren't great; they apparently aren't playing up to their potential, but we're still expecting trouble with them, mostly from the size perspective.

They have a 6'3", 225-pound back, and we had trouble holding that big player in Forrest County last week. Vancleave's back may not be as physical as the other player was, but his size alone will be a challenge."

He said the team is looking good so far this week, except for a few minor, nagging injuries

we need to deal with, but otherwise we're doing alright."

Brown said it's too early in the season to say for certain how individual players will develop. "Besides," he added, we like to look at it like this: we don't have any superstars on our team. We have a lot of little stars, and we're hoping to pull them together to create one big, bright star."

Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Pirate Stadium.
